SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 14.—An hour after the steamship Nippon Maru left here for Honolulu on December 11th, Miss Gladys Landers Piver became the wife of Whitaker Ray. The newspapers gave considerable space to the accounts of the wedding, which was celebrated at the California hotel in the presence of half a hundred relatives and intimates of the Piver and Ray families. The bride's brother, John C. Piver, who is well known to Honoluluans, gave his sister away, and Miss Berenice Landers, a cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. The best man was Charles Ray, a brother of the groom.

Miss Piver wore an imported gown of white lace, en traine. The trimmings were of white chiffon. Her veil was of extra length and was attached to her headpiece with a pin of diamonds and pearls, fashioned in the shape of a fleur de lis. This pin was the groom's gift. She held in her hand a bouquet of pink rosebuds, which were tied with long streamers upon which rosebuds were sewed.

The maid of honor, a very pretty debutante, wore a gown of lavender-colored crepe de chine with a princess train flaring at the bottom and trimmed with yellow lace. Her hat was of white lace trimmed with tulle.

The bride's mother was gowned in light gray crepe de chine over pink tulle, applied with lace. The bride appeared to best advantage and seemed radiantly happy. A small reception was held in the parlors of the hotel after the wedding, and light refreshments were served. Many handsome presents were received by the bride. The officiating clergyman was Rev. Burr M. Weeden of St. Luke's church.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray immediately departed for Southern California. They will spend a fortnight in visiting the leading resorts of California, and will be at home on Tuesdays next year, at their newly furnished house, 1440 Grove street.

WAILALUA MAN WEDS.

Mr. Harry C. Weiss, of Wailalua sugar plantation, was married on December 12th to Miss Daisy A. Doud of San Francisco. There were very few present at the ceremony, only the relatives of the contracting couple having been invited. The wedding was at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. N. A. Wood, 2211 Steiner street. The marriage was performed by Rev. Chas. N. Lathrop, pastor of the Church of the Advent.

Miss Doud is well known in educational circles. She is very pretty and has been a great favorite among the teachers of the public schools. Several years ago Miss Doud was quite the heroine of a newspaper story. Her first appointment to a school here was on the Farallone Islands. On this lonely spot in the ocean she taught the children of the lighthouse keepers and it was here that she met Mr. Weiss. Mr. and Mrs. Weiss are booked to sail on the Alameda today for Honolulu. They will live at Wailalua.

COMING TO LIVE HERE.

When Edward A. Douthitt, assistant to Attorney-General Dole, returns to Honolulu after Christmas, he will bring back with him a bride, who will doubtless be a welcome addition to society circles in the Hawaiian capital. Mr. Douthitt was married yesterday to Miss Edith A. Alden, who is a daughter of Mrs. Victoria Alden, of 519 Devisadero street. Mr. Douthitt was born in San Francisco and is well known here as a young man of promise in legal circles. He has been prominent as a member of fraternal organizations.

He was engaged for some time to Miss Alden and when he departed from here for Honolulu four or five months ago, he pledged himself to return for his bride very soon. Mrs. Douthitt is a very accomplished young woman, of quiet tastes, and looks forward with intense interest to her future residence in the islands. The wedding was not a society event and there were only a few intimate friends present.

NOTES ABOUT PEOPLE.

Major W. W. Robinson, of the quartermaster's department of the United States Army, has gone to Seattle to endeavor to straighten out the affairs of the Seattle office. Major Robinson has lately been quartermaster at Honolulu, and will leave Seattle for his permanent post at Manila. He was quartermaster in Seattle before he went to Honolulu and through some clerical errors the accounts of the department there were mixed up.

E. E. Beeman, the "chewing gum man," who was a guest at the Hawaiian hotel for some weeks a year or so ago, is now in Los Angeles on a visit. His home is in Cleveland. Mr. Beeman will be remembered by Honoluluans on account of his strange personality. He is the proprietor of "Beeman's Pepsin Gum" factory, and several times a millionaire. All his money has been made out of gum, and Mr. Beeman—perhaps as a tribute to the source of his wealth—always has a few sticks of gum in his pockets to delight his friends.

Hon. Samuel Parker, who arrived here on the steamship Alameda December 10th, in company with his sons, Jas. and Ernest, and Prince David, left for the East the next day. His sons have gone to San Jose where they will be educated.

Miss Nellie Kitchen of Honolulu is a guest at the California hotel.

Andrew Moore, formerly manager of Pauhanu plantation, has been here two weeks after a tour of Europe. Mr. Moore left Pauhanu some months ago to visit his father. The latter, however, died crossing the Atlantic. Mr. Moore has now come to San Francisco and will make this his permanent home. His father was a distinguished engineer formerly connected with the Union Iron Works.

Mrs. Helen Wilder Craft will spend Christmas at the Occidental Hotel. She is now at Watsonville, California.

The last steamer from Honolulu brought news of the death of Robert E. Hind, who, in addition to being a large sugar planter, was a heavy holder of San Francisco real estate, acquired within the last eight or nine years. It includes about fifty pieces, some extensive in area and others valuable because of their location. The Hind property is probably worth close to $1,000,000 and is free from incumbrance. Robert E. Hind was not only a believer in San Francisco realty, but improved much of that which he bought. He leaves a widow and several children. One of whom, George U. Hind, is the owner of several pieces of property, as well as being a resident of this city.

IS DENIED BY MISS CAMPBELL

Says She is Not Engaged to Prince David Kawananakoa.

(Special to the Advertiser.)

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 14.—Miss Abbie Campbell, daughter of the late Jas. Campbell, and one of the richest young women of Hawaii, denies flatly that she is engaged to marry Prince David Kawanakoa. About seven months ago the Examiner published a full-page article embellished with striking pictures of Miss Campbell and Prince David, on the subject of their coming wedding. Ever since there has been considerable gossip about the probabilities of the charming daughter of the Campbell house joining fortunes with the scion of Hawaii's monarchy.

The statement has been published here that the Kapiolani estate, in which is merged the property of Prince David, has borrowed from the Campbell estate a quarter of a million dollars, and that while love prompted Prince David in his quest of the hand of Miss Campbell, necessity backed up Cigna, a close friend of the Campbell family and some months ago that he believed Miss Abbie and David would be man and wife within a year.

The arrival of Prince David here, a few days ago, revived these stories, as briefly told in dispatches to the Advertiser, by the steamship Nippon Maru. In the last two days the Examiner and Chronicle have been anxiously trying to prove these rumors true. Reporters have been flying about the Occidental hotel at all hours of the night and day, questioning people from Hawaii, and the clerks at that hostelry. The fact that since Prince David's coming here he has spent much time with the Campbells, has added fuel to the flame of gossip. Prince David himself was not to be seen. Finally the Examiner secured an interview with Miss Campbell herself and the few words she said effectually punctured the report. Miss Campbell said:

"I am not engaged to be married to Prince David nor to anyone. Prince

New York Was Not Appreciated
by the Hawaiian Ex-Queen.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—The Sun says: Queen Liliuokalani, with the imperial retinue and the seventeen pieces of imperial baggage, left New York yesterday for Washington. Her departure was somewhat unexpected, as it was given out that she was to remain in this city for several days. Her Majesty was very much disappointed, however, at the way New York had treated her. She was willing to forgive the fact that several hotels were too full to accommodate her, for she appreciated that they did not realize that royalty was knocking at the door. But nobody came to pay her homage, not even Mayor Van Wyck, or Squier Croker, or the Daughters of the Crown. The feelings of her Majesty were hurt by this neglect and late on Saturday night she called her royal secretary, Joshua Aea.

David is an old friend of the family. I have known him since I was a child. We like each other, but that is all." It is understood that Mrs. James Campbell is seriously opposed to an alliance with Prince David on account of his lavish expenditures and inability to live within his income. However, she has said that if her daughter's affections were engaged by David or anyone else she would not stand in the way of her happiness.

It is alleged by intimates of Prince David that he has spent most of his inheritance. As a matter of fact, the generous prince is on the mainland now in the hopes of negotiating a loan large enough to pay off some of his most pressing obligations. The Campbells left to day for San Jose, where they will spend Christmas at the St. James hotel. Mrs. Campbell will entertain her friends in San Jose during her stay there.

Prince David, meanwhile, is enjoying himself with the sights and delights of San Francisco, which is very gay in the account of the approaching holidays.

into the royal presence and had a talk with him.

"Joshua," said the Queen, "the people of this city don't seem to appreciate the fact that royalty is here to be entertained. What are we going to do about it?"

"I don't know, ma'am—I mean your Majesty—" said Aea. "I guess they haven't the right idea about queens in this town. Suppose we go to Washington—I mean I would suggest that your Majesty journey to Washington, where she should be received with more regard to her high station."

"I agree with you, Joshua—Mr. Secretary. We will start early in the morning. Get ready to take us—I mean, make arrangements for our royal departure in the morning."

Aea then left her Majesty, who took to her royal couch, while the secretary wrestled with time-tables.

The party left the hotel Roland at eight o'clock yesterday morning and was driven to the station. There there was another consultation.

"Joshua, when you get the tickets will you find out whether we can stop at Princeton for a few hours? I would like to see a great and good friend there if it is possible," said the Queen. Joshua returned with the information that their train did not stop at Princeton. The Queen boarded the ferryboat with a disappointed look on her face, followed by the imperial retinue. The deckhands on the boat were as ignorant of the fact that royalty was with them as New York had been, so there was no demonstration.

At the close of the program Mr. Santa Claus paid a visit to the school. A pleasant surprise had been planned by Mrs. Frasier and the teachers, in the shape of a little sack. Its contents may be guessed. Each of the five hundred pupils marched to his room carrying the little gift. In the class rooms the work of the month was distributed and the children left the building with their presents to go into their homes to make a merry Christmas for their parents.

A. J. Snell wanted to attend a party, but was afraid to do so on account of pains in his stomach, which he feared would grow worse. He says, "I was telling my troubles to a lady friend, who said: 'Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy will put you in a condition for the party.' I bought a bottle and take pleasure in stating that two doses cured me and enabled me to have a good time at the party." Mr. Snell is a resident of Summer Hill, N. Y. This remedy is for sale by Benson, Smith & Co., Ltd.

JOHN JACOB ASTOR'S MARINE TURBINE ENGINE.

Colonel John Jacob Astor has just patented a marine turbine engine to drive vessels at high speed. The Astor turbine differs from other forms in the fact that it has stationary parts other than the journals and foundation frames. The engine of the turbine is a screw, which in the opposite direction, moves a second screw, both screws being in the same plane.
